Clerics' Salaries Raised

Pay Has Been Increased More Than $2,000,000; 215 Missionaries in Field

By Rev. Dr. E. C. Chorley PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 8 .- The queson of the relation of the Church to spiritual healing was brought to the attention of the Episcopal House of Deputies this morning when Dean J. Wilbur Gresham, of the Cathedral in San Francisco, presented a memorial from the Province of the Pacific which reads as follows:

Lord commanded his disciples not only to preach the gospel but also to heal the sick, and that the power to exerneglected in the history of the Church, as never been surrendered or lost;

In view of the further fact that this ministry under various forms is for the enrichment of the life of the Church; this committee of the synod of the Province of the Pacific hereby memorializes the general convention to the end that healing ministries in the Church be fully safeguarded on the one hand and reverently conserved on the other, thus restoring Christian healing to its ancient and rightful place in the faith and practice or the Church. This committee of the Province of the Pacific therefore urges upon the general convention the adoption of the following resolution: Mr. and Mrs. George T. Ordway, of Lawrence Park, Bronxville, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Partridge Ordway, to Mr. Donald Thurston Thomson, son of Dr. Elihu Thomson, of Swampscott, Mass. Mr. Thomson was graduated from Harvard in the class of '14 and served overseas with the 48th Coast Artillery. He is now in the banking business in Boston.

Says Healing Is Divine

"Resolved, That the Church urges upon its clergy and laity the recognition of the following fundamental principles of Christian healing:

"(1) That all healing, whether of body, mind or spirit, is divine in its character, and is the resultant of the life-giving spirit of God.

"(2) That distinctively Christian healing is the manifestation of the life through Christ, who hath life abiding in Him and who quickeneth whom He will. Says Healing Is Divine

The widow is the sole beneficiary under this document, but the testator commended to her the financial and material welfare of his son. The will cannot be probated until a citation in the probate proceedings has been served. Because of the unknown whereabouts of Willets, it will be necessary to serve him by publication. Pending the probating of the will of her husband Mrs. Willets had herself appointed as temporary administratrix in the Surrogates' Courty yesterday. Mrs. Willets said that she has made a diligent search for her son, who is twenty-eight years old, but has received no information concerning his present whereabouts. His last known address was care of the Postal Telegraph Company, by whom he was employed at 25 South Street.

Mr. Willets bequeathed his entire estate to his widow, including such property as he inherited from his grandaunt, Mrs. Rachel Dunham. Mrs. Willets is also to receive any moneys due the author from his publishers.

Remained on Directorates

Mr. Flagler still retained his position on the directorates of several corporations, among them the National Bank of North America, the Matual Meramined England of Morth America, the Matual Mercantile Agency, the American Union Life Insurance Company and the Crocker-Wheeler Company, His clubs included the Lotos, New York Yacht, Larchmont Yacht, American Yacht, Damocratic, Lake Hopatcong, Lawyers, Automobile Club of America, Suburban Riding and Driving and the Scarsdale Golf Club. He also was a member of the American Museum of Natural History and the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

A cousin of the late Henry H. Flagler, the Standard Oil magnate, he was born at Cold Spring, Putnam County, in 1838. His early education was received from private tutors and afterward he completed a course in the Academy of Paterson, N. J., Flagler's business life began at an early age and his rise in the world of finance was rapid.

Flagler's initial experience was as a clerk for Haldane & Co., a New York firm extensively engaged in the iron business. The partners were two of his uncles, John and James Haldane. He early proved himself to have an instinctive executive and constructive ability, and within a few years he was given control of the Boston hear formed the firm of John H. Employed Thousands of Men

The Flagler firm gradually became noted for making tubing, and thus the National Tube Company came into being in East Boston. This institution rapidly became the chief manufacturer in the United States of this product and he established a great plant at McKeesport, Pa., employing thousands of men. It is said that he provided 95 per cent of the tubing in the earlier days of the Pennsylvania oil fields.

In addition to his operation of the several companies allied with the steel industry, Mr. Flagler made several inventions of importance. These included the bringing to practical iron productive use a certain gas furnace, previously known only acroad and there restricted to the manufacture of glass.

Married Three Times

Mr. Flagler was married three times.

His first wife was Anna H. Converse, of Boston, whom he married in 1856;
the second was Alice Mandelick, of New York, 1898, and the third, Frances Wennecker, of Brooklyn, in 1921.

The third marriage took place at Copake Falls, N. Y., a village in the Berkshire foothills. It developed that his
